1. ARTISTIC SETTING Internationally collected artist Paul Cameron Smith creates stunning Western artwork, including oil paintings and detailed pencil drawings of cowboys, cowgirls, horses, and landscapes. Montana Silversmiths has reproduced a series of his artwork on collectible dinnerware, the Paul Cameron Smith Branded Dinnerware set ($169). Part of the Montana Silversmiths' Cowboy Branded Dinnerware line, each four-piece setting of the 16-piece set captures four of the artist's original drawings: the Daddy's Hands dinner plate, the Courting Cowboy mug, the Ladies First salad plate, and the Cherished bowl—all featuring a ranch-brand border. The dishwasher- and microwave-safe ceramic set is available at fine Western stores or through Montana Silversmiths' website. www.montanasilversmiths.com.

2. PICNIC PERFECT These place mats from C.R. Ranchwear are elegant enough for any table setting yet durable enough for an outdoor picnic. The double-sided design features the playful Cowgirl print in 100 percent cotton on one side and a spill- and stain-resistant faux-suede brown leather on the other. A faux-leather fringe border completes the look. Available in Cowgirl, Red Bucking Cowboy, and Black Bucking Cowboy prints. A set of four place mats and matching napkins is $99. Visit the website to see more place mat styles and C.R. Ranchwear's collection of Western apparel and pajamas. 972.998.7597, www.crranchwear.com.

4. NEW TONY LAMAS Like the Deryl Dodd song says, nothing's better than putting on a brand spankin' new pair of Tony Lama boots and hittin' the town or local hoedown. These handcrafted two-tone boots in Walnut Sedona from Tony Lama's El Paso Collection feature hand-cut inlays, single-stitched full-leather welts, and Lama Comfort Technology with leather-covered triple-density insoles for moisture control and genuine spring-steel shanks for stability ($350). 866.240.8854, www.tonylama.com.
